

Ersian Latifi

English 210

Professor: Dr Leslie Carpenter

Rhetorical précis: Mother tongue

Amy Tan, a well known novelist best known for her first book The Joy Luck Club and other novels, claims how broken English language has affected her everyday life and how it limits her respect and options in society. (A Portable Anthology Fourth ed. Bedford/St. Martin's.

Boston, 2014)

Thus conveying her story and showcasing how this affected her life .

She supports this claim by sharing data of her personal life and the effect this topic has had on her life and illustrates examples of how people didn't respect her or let her pursue her dreams because she used a broken language.

Tan's purpose on writing this is to bring light to this topic and encourage other immigrants or people facing the same difficulties in order for them to be brave and learn from her life as to follow their dreams.

Because of the writer's formal and persuasive tone it seems she writes for a large scale of people these events of her life so it gives us a good story and a more engaging audience