

Ersian Latifi

Professor: Dr Leslie carpenter

Writing has been with us for several thousand years, and nowadays is more important than ever. Writing is a form of art, where in art just like a piece of drawing which is beautifully built with a lot of details, that's how writing is considered. It's a use of different words together to try to convey a message to the reader or your audience, but unlike art which gives a message which can be intercepted various of ways depending on the person viewing the image and his perception of the idea ,writing cannot create this confusion as how its strait up and conveys the message in which there is no room for debate

Although some percent of people are still unable to read and write, humanity relies on writing a lot. Nowadays more communication takes place in the written than in the oral mode. That is a big fact as how nowadays we are texting and chatting with everyone and the internet is making it spread faster.As the technology advances more and more ,writing occurs and we can see as how we have so many written stuff as the books in the libraries networks and many more thing which are used in our ordinary life

. This idea brings us to another question as to what it means to be an effective writer. Being an effective writer means choosing the best set of words that can be used to describe an event , convey a message in the most effective way to the audience. An effective writer should also be clear and make his message easy to be clarified by his audience.

Some experiences I have had with writing which have led to seeing writing the way I do now are how in the beginning when we were doing essays in high school we used the word "i" and mostly wrote our paper in the first person point of view .

And now as we progress and move to the different stages of life we develop and learn new writing skills which are necessary for us to sound more polite and educated. Writing is a great tool as how as i mentioned before with the way technology processed we are able to convey things that we couldn't do before and state words that if we were to be in person would bring an upsetting , but if you do this behind the computer or phone screens you still convey the same message and take less risks. Writing is great tool but it has its own risk as how sometimes your message goes to the wrong audience and causes a backlash to start especially if you are someone with a high status as how in general people try to get the worst out of you, no matter how much good you have done they try to find one bad thing and try to take you down. Your words weigh a lot and as you climb up the social status and some sayings you used to say cannot be said anymore and you have to put ink in your words so it doesn't cause a disturbance and affects your life to a downfall . People with power should express their writing more freely but in fact they are the ones that have a limitation of words as how they would lose their position if they said something that was true but people didn't like it . I feel that nowadays people are being pushed into a limitation of their freedoms of expression which also includes writing. It is interesting how times have changed and we are being more selective with our writing.

