For our first assignment, the Rhetorical Analysis Essay, my class was assigned to rhetorically read and analyse different texts related to the topic of language mostly. My argument was how people downgrade other people, mostly immigrants, based on their ability to speak the same as them .   My intended audience for this was mostly people who speak English as their first language to try to make them understand how bad it is to judge someone just by their accent and their ability to speak . i try yo raised awareness by rhetorically analysing the text and details that were put there to show how immigrants were being mistreated
